BURR RIDGE, Ill., June 8 /PRNewswire/ -- Integrated Project Management Company announced today that Tim Noffke, Vice President Life Sciences, in conjunction with Greg Kain and Andy Myslicki, both Senior Project Managers, will be presenting at the Institute of Validation's Project Management for Drug Development Series on June 14, 2005, at the Doubletree Hotel located at 237 South Broad Street, in Philadelphia. The entire conference runs from June 14-17th. Mr. Noffke will conduct a workshop on establishing a project management office in a dynamic R&D driven organization to reduce risk, tighten timelines, and control costs - critical factors to success. Also on June 14th, Noffke will moderate an interactive session entitled "Good Project Management Practices Across Discovery and Development." Both the workshop and the interactive session will feature practical advice and tools, developed and proven through IPM's many successful engagements, for managing the complexities of drug development efforts.
